How to support the YaleSA movement

Supporting YaleSA contributes to the Academy's startup and future prosperity. Your support and contributions will enable YaleSA to become a recognized role-player in the independent school sphere, in addition to contributing to the realization of creating enabling spaces to foster ethical leadership. It is selfless philanthropy in monetary and other forms that contribute to the realization of YaleSA's ideal and vision of a world-class academy. These donations, legacies, sponsorships, involvements and other contributions assume greater importance as YaleSA prepares for the many challenges of a startup in a challenging sector, not least of which is financial viability. Through your gifts, you will be assisting in inspiring a new generation of leaders to strive beyond the ordinary, create meaningful impact, develop character and leadership potential to prepare this young generation of leaders to serve their communities.

People

Partial & Full Scholarships

One of the fundamental aspects of whole-school development is that of providing learning opportunities to students who demonstrate exceptional leadership qualities. The funding of scholarships will create a pillar of support which will have far-reaching and enduring benefits for both school and students. The provision of such scholarships will therefore invite young leaders with demonstrable potential to join the YaleSA family, with high demands of contributing to a better society, that will witness far-reaching and enduring benefits. In addition, such scholarships will be made available in future year, upon excellent performance in the 10th and 11th grades.

Partial & Full Bursaries

This is an admirable feature of most independent schools and academies. It is our aim to support learners through partial bursaries by awarding learners who show leadership potential, and who may otherwise not be able to meet the financial requirements of the Academy.

Staff and Parental Development

Our staff, teachers and parents play a vital role in the lives of our young leaders. We are also aware of the critical shortage of teachers devoted to the extensive curriculum demands and standards expected at YaleSA. We therefore aim to offer our existing staff opportunities to develop their professional interests and areas of specialization. This will ensure that our teachers are continuously improving to ensure that we invest in the 'best of the best'. Moreover, the demands of supporting learners in this century are ever-growing, and we aim to offer parents programs to help guide and support their children as part of the YaleSA mission.

Projects

Community Engagement

An important component of the development of young leadership, is that of ensuring our young leaders become servant-orientated leaders. The leadership curriculum not only entails a rigorous self-discovery, self-development and exposure program, but also engages young leaders to be active in their communities. Our young leaders are required to commit to regular community service and engagement during the first semester, while in the second semester, they are required to implement meaningful group projects. Such projects have impacts on the individuals and communities they serve and also have lasting impacts on our young leaders that will ripple through our Academy for generations to come. How our young leaders discover the future depends on the humanity of all the lessons we bring to them; so we gather people from different backgrounds, religions, countries and races and we trust them – to work and live together, to develop insights and abandon prejudices. We want our students to honour the privileges that they have received, to become independent, rational and compassionate citizens of the world, to respect the environment and to contribute meaningfully to their communities.

Infrastructural Upgrades

Infrastructural upgrades includes creating new facilities and upgrading existing ones in line with the long-term planning of the institution. At the heart of any good institution are its people but, in order to work well together, they need facilities and resources commensurate with their skills. The Academy will manage its budget prudently and invests every year in refurbishment and ongoing upgrades but some projects require more money than is generated by fee income.

Business Development Division

The Academy will use philanthropic contributions to invest in sustainable business ventures, that both support our student startups, and businesses operated by the Academy that contribute to the Academy's income generating activities. Such capital contributions allow us to seek market-driven solutions to financial viability challenges

Skills and Network Access Program

Do you have a skill that you wish to share with YaleSA? Monetary contributions aren't everything. In fact, if you're a marketing professional or a business manager, or other professional, YaleSA could use your skills. Consider contributing two hours a month, or serving on our network of advisors.

Educational Trust
